Gods

- Named after natural dyes/pigments. Things that create colors basically
- Major beings worshipped by all. Temples of them are found in about every major city. They don't have physical forms.
- Maître Wellwood: Protect the past, present, and future
    - Not really a god more so than an ideology. It is the combined faiths of the 3 major gods, Madder, Weld, and Woad. Madder upholds one's heritage and history, Weld upholds one's people and ruler, and Woad upholds the knowledge to be passed to the next generation.

The Allkrom

- The people of Adamos claim him to be a being with a more direct influence than the other Mordants. Either some higher deity, an ancient being, or an entity from beyond, his true identity is only known to the Archciel (basically the pope), and they are the only one who hears his words.
- PF2E Domains: Perfection, Time, Vigil, Void; Favored Weapon: Morningstar

Madder – God of the earth, honor, and family (LN)

- Madder is said to be the one who built Akroma's natural borders to keep the people from straying too far from their homelands. He forged and sculpted the lands from using the volcanoes. Madder instilled the virtues of loyalty and integrity into mankind.
- Values: Defend your name, care for your home and family, take pride in your lineage
- Symbol: A mountain with a fist emblazoned on it.
- PF2E Domains: Duty, Earth, Family, Protection; Favored Weapon: Pick

Weld – God of the sun, purity, and justice (LG)

- Weld is said to have carried the sun by a chain like a flail. He used his light to nourish the living and guide the people to prosperity. His light also purges the evils that would dare threaten his gifts. Weld instilled the virtues of valor and altruism into mankind.
- Values: Vanquish evil, protect the needy, honor our sun
- Symbol: A flail with the sun as the head
- PF2E Domains: Confidence, Fire, Sun, Zeal; Favored Weapon: Flail

Woad – Goddess of the sky, wisdom, and seasons (N)

- Woad is said to embody the winds of change. She moved the skies and the waves so that man could further pursue the world around them. Woad instilled the virtues of curiosity and passion into mankind.
- Values: Pursue knowledge, share your wisdom with all, never fall complacent
- Symbol: A shooting star with a trail of wind behind it
- PF2E Domains: Air, Change, Knowledge, Magic; Favored Weapon: Staff

Mordants

- Also named after natural dyes/pigments.
- Lesser gods though still revered. They kind of function like celestial beings that reside over mankind
- While all perform a role and are respected, most choose only one to worship.
- Each has at least one physical manifestation of itself.

Kermes (Kur-mees) – God of trade, forge, and community

- Kermes is the founder of early civilization. He established a community through a system of bartering and trading. The current system of commerce in Argrenath is based on his teachings. It's believed that the exchange of goods and services is the proper way to ensure that the value of the craft is never lost.
- Values: Provide for your community, always provide fair exchange of goods and services, never take anything for granted
- Temples: The House of Barons, Amaranth
- Symbol: A shield with a bristled pattern emblazoned on it
- Manifestation: A giant ironshell turtle with red brambles layering his shell
- PF2E Domains: Cities, Creation, Family, Wealth; Favored Weapon: Mace

Cochineal (Kotch-in-eel) – God of war, glory, and strength

- Cochineal the Hammer is a ruthless and stalwart god. He believes that the only way to protect what's yours is through hard-fought bloodshed. A much more militant god than the rest, many warriors and brutes will take up his domain during battle. Most weapons made in Argrenath are forged under his blessing.
- Values: Might makes right, actions speak louder than words, protect what's yours
- Temples: Firestone Smithworks, Cordovan
- Symbol: A spartan helmet with a jewel in one eye hole
- Manifestation: An armored bull with hammers chained to ends of his bronze yoke
- PF2E Domains: Ambition, Cochineal, Might, Zeal; Favored Weapon: Warhammer

Kerr Lacca (Kair Lack-uh) – Goddess of fire, fury, and bloodshed

- Kerr Lacca is the embodiment of hardship and grief incarnated as fury and hatred. Those who follow her are the ones who wish to bathe in the blood of those who wronged them. Berserkers and barbarians alike make sacrifices and rituals of their kills in her name. Many mark themselves with tattoos representing griefs and struggles that fuel their fire.
- Values: Show no mercy to your enemies, let your hatred fly free, wear your scars like badges of honor
- Temples: Deep in Mt. Cinnabar's magma chambers
- Symbol: An erupting volcano under a blood red sun
- Manifestation: A bright red phoenix wreathed in flames with a sun disc hovering her like a halo
- PF2E Domains: Destruction, Fire, Pain, Sorrow; Favored Weapon: Greatsword

Saffron – Goddess of freedom, journeys, and the horizon

- Also known as One-Eyed June, Saffron is believed to have reached godhood after journeying west to a lost promised land. Her nickname comes from the misconception that she was lost or that the place she sought did not exist.
- Values: Follow your dreams, chase the horizon, express who you are
- Temples: No formal temple. Her followers are never tied down to one place.
- Symbol: A sunrise peeking over the horizon
- Manifestation: A desert fox with a rising sun on her back and doesn't leave pawprints where she treads
- PF2E Domains: Air, Freedom, Sun, Travel; Favored Weapon: Fist

Gamboge (Gam-bohj) – God of the sands, hunting, and the wild

- Gamboge teaches humbleness and strength through hardships and sacrifice. He is said to roam the dunelands of Cirranbar and hunt down the weak. In his domain, you are either the predator, or the prey.
- Values: Only the strong survive, trials and tribulations make you who you are, it's kill or be killed
- Temples: Small shrines in bandit sects, including Lion's Den.
- Symbol: A cobra coiled around an hourglass
- Manifestation: A giant desert cobra with an hourglass on its hood and a scorpion stinger on his tail.
- PF2E Domains: Dust, Might, Nature, Time; Favored Weapon: Spear

Quercitron (Kair-sit-rohn) – God of harvest, feasts, and livestock

- Quercitron oversees the croplands of all farmers. Many farmers take heed of his guidance to maintain healthy produce. Those who would sell bad or overpriced food would seek his wrath and find their lands to be withered and infertile on the coming harvest.
- Values: Care for your animals, respect the land which you harvest, take integrity in what you grow and sell.
- Temples: The Cornucopia, Maize
- Symbol: A cornucopia full of wheat and barley
- Manifestation: A collection of small, chubby, ankylosaur-like creatures. Each one carries a pouch of seeds on its back.
- PF2E Domains: Decay, Indulgence, Moon, Swarm; Favored Weapon: Scythe

Myrabalan (Mee-ruh-bae-lan) – Goddess of redemption, love, and healing

- Myrabalan believes there is good in all of mankind, whether they express it or not. Many come to her domain for aid in atoning for their sins or forgiving the sins of others. It's believed that she wards the spirits of those who cannot move on.
- Values: Forgive and heal, strive to do good by those around you, love who you are
- Temples: House of Healing, Flaxen
- Symbol: Two hands embracing a heart
- Manifestation: A swarm of golden butterflies that sound like church bells as they fly
- PF2E Domains: Healing, Passion, Protection, Repose; Favored Weapon: Rapier

Fustic (Fyoo-stick) – God of rulership, polis, and law

- Fustic is the enforcer of Weld's edicts. He is more vocal than most gods and is responsible for selecting the new king of Flavo Topis. His role is to maintain order and peace throughout all cities through strict ordinances. Those who oppose these laws will face harsh punishment.
- Values: Respect all authority, enforce the law to each fellow man, never turn a blind eye to the unlawful
- Temples: The Hall of Edicts, Castle Fulvos.
- Symbol: A crossed sword and aspergillum with an eye overlaid at the intersection
- Manifestation: Twin hounds wearing judge wigs, one carries a sword and the other carries an aspergillum
- PF2E Domains: Cities, Duty, Truth, Tyranny; Favored Weapon: Longsword

Broom – God of wealth, fortune, and trickery

- Broom respects all who respect the coin and are clever enough to obtain it. A bit of a trickster, his blessings tend to have unforeseen consequences. Though he's not whimsical, he intends to teach his followers modesty. Broom knows that those who get too comfortable with their possessions will fall victim to complacency and greed.
- Values: Make sure you earn your keep, always be one step ahead, take stock of valuable assets
- Temples: The Fool's Wisdom, Harlequin
- Symbol: A coin with a jester face on it
- Manifestation: A small bipedal toad wearing a jester cap and carrying a cane
- PF2E Domains: Ambition, Luck, Trickery, Wealth; Favored Weapon: Hand Crossbow

Verdigris (Vair-dih-gree) – Goddess of nature, foraging, and medicine

- Verdigris resides over the forests of Maradosa but extends her blessing to all who accept the wild as their home. Those who live away from civilization or seek nature's blessing take heed of her teachings. She is known to hail down and enact her wrath on those who would disrespect her domain or take more than what is bestowed.
- Values: Respect nature, live free of urban comforts, take only what's needed to survive
- Temples: The Great Oak, Laurel
- Symbol: An elk head with tree branches for antlers
- Manifestation: A large elk with tree branches for antlers
- PF2E Domains: Healing, Nature, Swarm, Water; Favored Weapon: Longbow

Anil (Ah-neel) – Goddess of the sea, sailing, and storms

- Anil the Pirate Queen rules both the sea and sails. It is always important that any vessel pay tithe to the ocean before setting sail, lest they earn her wrath. She is fierce and quick-tempered, and the sea is littered with wrecked ships that have not followed her law. It's tradition for any pirate to throw part of their haul overboard before sinking a vessel, called Anil's Due.
- Values: Take what you desire, give back to the water for safe travel, never stay anchored to one place.
- Temples: The Shipyard, Zaffre Isles
- Symbol: A scimitar with waves along the blade
- Manifestation: A kraken wearing a wrecked ship like a pirate hat, and wielding 8 scimitars
- PF2E Domains: Air, Cold, Lightning, Travel; Favored Weapon: Scimitar

Logwood – God of history, fates, and the stars

- Logwood the Starseer can chart the stars to see both the physical locations and the destinations of fates themselves. The Logwood Library is a temple full of his teachings and readings of both the past and future. Many go there in search of knowledge and guidance.
- Values: It's folly to ignore wisdom , never forget the past, find the truth in all signs.
- Temples: Logwood Library, Mt. Celeste
- Symbol: a Greek torch with glittering blue flames
- Manifestation: A pegasus with glittering stars adorning his wing that trail his path
- PF2E Domains: Fate, Glyph, Knowledge, Star; Favored Weapon: Starknife

Lazuli (Lah-zuh-lee) – Goddess of creativity, dreams, and planes

- Lazuli the Dreamweaver visits the minds of people during their sleep to give them inspiration & respite. She dwells in an unknown plane that connects to the subconscious of those in the material plane. It's said that the song of a nightingale is Lazuli giving her blessing during your dreams.
- Values: Imagine beyond the fathomable, find inspiration in every corner, there are no accidents, only cause for creativity
- Temples: The Dreamer's Dens scattered throughout Covalt
- Symbol: A nightingale perched on clouds and larkspur
- Manifestation: A flock of nightingales that flow from a deep blue cloud
- PF2E Domains: Delirium, Dreams, Nightmares, Repose; Favored Weapon: Glaive

Indigo – God of the night, magic, and monsters

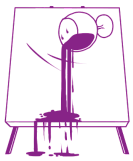

- Very little is known about this god; they're identity, history, nor even appearance. The name "Indigo" was only given to them by historians based on ancient texts. Old worshippers seem to be all but forgotten and new acolytes are scattered and secretive. It does appear, however, that patronage of this mordant is not through worship, but through the choosing of a very intimate ritual that is known only by a handful of people. Though they're identity is a mystery, their presence is well known throughout Akroma through the terrible beasts and horrors that roam the night.
- Values: Become one with the night, there is beauty in the monstrous, guard secrets with conviction
- Temples: ???
- Symbol: A crescent moon cradling a monster's eye
- Manifestation: ???
- PF2E Domains: Darkness, Magic, Moon, Undeath; Favored Weapon: Falchion

Murex (Myur-eks) – God of lust, murder, and revenge

- Murex is a bitter and obsessive god. He and his followers are never to be trifled with. Though quick-tempered, he is artful in his ways of dealing out punishment, seeking to make impressive displays of his victims. His favored method of killing, which is often mimicked by his followers, is exsanguination followed by using the victim's blood to paint works of art. Murex prefers his revenge to be excruciatingly painful and drawn out.
- Values: Never let anyone slight you, make your kills a works of art, a follower's work is seen but never heard
- Temples: The House of Pain, Lavender
- Symbol: A murex shell
- Manifestation: A tiny sea snail with spines full of various toxins and elixirs. He can appear in any shell
- PF2E Domains: Cold, Death, Pain, Trickery; Favored Weapon: Spiked Chain

Orcein (Oar-see-enn) – Goddess of art, wine, and revelry

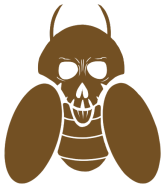

- Orcein is only appeased by the fanciest and wildest of parties. Her influence over Methysto has led to its current ruling system and the biennial Orchella Festival to determine the new Eminence. Instead of a formal temple, Methystans simply leave patronage at the Royal Court by having overly extravagant parties in her name.
- Values: Never have a dull moment in life, live life like a party, never settle for anything that isn't absolutely beautiful or ostentatious
- Temples: Wisteria, The Royal Palace of the Eminence
- Symbol: A painting of a spilled glass of wine with the wine leaking out of the portrait
- Manifestation: A giant violet peacock whose song carries for miles. She can transport through paintings
- PF2E Domains: Indulgence, Luck, Secrecy, Star; Favored Weapon: Whip

Sequoia (Seh-koi-uh) – God of clay, birth, and beginnings

- Sequoia is typically worshipped in respect to birth and fertility. The major gods had raised Sequoia from clay and tasked it with sculpting creatures like itself around the world from the fertile soil below. A common phrase in Cirranbar is inspired by it: "If you're looking to start anew, start from the ground up."
- Values: All life has potential, there are no mistakes only hidden creations, respect the soul and body
- Temples: None
- Symbol: A clay mask with upside down facial features
- Manifestation: A multi-armed clay golem with sculpting tools in each hand.
- PF2E Domains: Change, Creation, Earth, Soul; Favored: Weapon: Shortsword

Catechu (Cat-eh-shoo) – Goddess of death, decay, and disease

- Catechu (or Lady Cutch) serves as the grim reaper of sorts, waiting at the end of every lifeline. She is known to destroy everything she touches and seeks the end of all civilizations so that something stronger may take its place.
- Values: Destroy the weak and incapable, serve your life up to that which is greater, leave nothing dead to waste.
- Temples: None
- Symbol: A beetle with a skull on its back
- Manifestation: Swarms of carrion beetles with a skull on their backs.
- PF2E Domains: Death, Decay, Dust, Fate; Favored Weapon: Dagger

Soot – God of darkness, finality, and ash

- Soot is an old and forgotten god, no longer worshiped so much as feared. Unlike Catechu who waits for ends, Soot acts to snuff out life without prejudice. It's believed that only through death and destruction can life begin anew. His followers seek to cleanse and purge themselves of all before them in order to be reborn through the ashes. Many are quite fanatical about fire and destruction.
- Values: Birth though destruction, sentiment is weakness, ashes to ashes, dust to dust
- Temples: Somewhere deep in the Spine of Ashes in Inyxo
- Symbol: A black ring of fire and smoke
- Manifestation: ???
